'Tom?'

No answer!

'Tom?'

No answer!

'Where can he be?' Aunt Polly asked herself. 'He must be somewhere here!' She went to the door, looked out into the garden and then shouted again, 'Tom! Tom!' No answer !!!

The old lady stood there thoughtfully. Suddenly she heard a sound behind her. She turned round quickly. There was Tom near the cupboard door. There was jam all over his face.

'What have you been doing?' Aunt Polly asked angrily. When Tom did not answer, she went on, 'you've been stealing jam again? Don't tell me that you haven't. Haven't I told you a hundred times to keep away from that cupboard? where's my stick?' Aunt Polly took her stick and raised it high. She was about to strike Tom hard.

'Look behind you, Auntie!' Shouted Tom. Aunt Polly looked behind her. This was Tom's chance. He rushed out of the house. He climbed over the fence. Soon he was far away.

Aunt Polly was angry but she had to laugh. 'He is a bad boy', she said to herself. 'But I love him. He's my poor dead sister's boy, and I must look after him. I don't like to hit him. But I have to. If I don't punish him, he will grow up lazy and wicked. Yes I must be strict.' Aunt Polly sighed. 'I'll have to punish him for stealing the jam. But how? I know tomorrow is Saturday and there's no school on Saturdays. The boys have a holiday. But I'll make Tom work. That will punish him'.
