It was the festival of spring. “Come, child, come!” they called to the child and gathering him up they took the narrow, winding footpath which led to the fair.

As they entered, a sweet seller hawked, “Gulab-jamun, Rasgulla, Burfi, Jalebi” at the corner of the entrance. The child stared open-eyed and his mouth watered for the Burfi that was his favourite sweet.

“I want that Burfi,” he slowly murmured. But he half knew that his plea would not be heeded because his parents would say he was greedy. So without waiting for an answer he moved on. A man stood holding a pole with yellow, red, green and purple balloons flying from it. The child was simply carried away by the rainbow glory of their colours and filled with desire to possess them all. But he well knew that his parents would never buy him the balloons because they would say he was too old to play with such toys. So he walked on farther.
