 $(1\times4=4)$

Neem is popularly known as the miracle tree in India because of its great healing qualities. It is a tall evergreen tree with small bright green leaves that has several leaflets. It can easily be grown in dry, stony, shallow, and clayey soil. Young neem trees cannot tolerate excessive cold. Neem is widely known for its medicinal purposes. Each part of the tree is used for making medicines and cosmetics.

Neem leaves are used in the treatment of chicken pox. Also, tea made from neem leaves is useful in reducing headache and fever. Neem flowers are used to cure intestinal problems. People in villages use its twigs for brushing their teeth. Neem bark contains tannin, which is used in tanning and dyeing. The bark also yields a fiber, which is used for weaving ropes.
